
ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

M In a circuit simulation system, a simulator and a part of device models and circuit models are stored in a server on the Internet, a user sends arbitrary circuit data to the server, the server carries out a calculation using the circuit data received from the user and the device and circuit models stored therein, and then the server returns the results of calculation to the user.
